Happy Fall,

I hope that this message finds everyone still healthy and ready to start a new semester! We faced many new challenges over the summer and found many more as we started planning a fall semester with masks and social distancing still in place. Who would have thought that we would still be worrying about all of this now? But, we all do our best to move forward these days because it's all we have isn't it?

The Board and I have had to make some difficult decisions regarding the 2021 conference. Most of us have had our budgets cut tremendously and several of us have already been informed about travel restrictions for the upcoming year. With that in mind, we chose to move forward with plans to offer you a virtual conference experience this spring. The Wyndham in San Antonio was gracious in offering us an option to move the in-person conference with them to 2023 without penalties. So, if everything goes well in the next year we should be back to Corpus Christi for 2022, and then San Antonio for 2023....fingers are crossed for sure!

The TACVPO family is strong and we will persevere though this new reality. More information to come regarding the 2021 TACVPO Virtual Conference.

Stay safe, stay masked and try to be happy!
